“CRS Helps Client’s Maximize Revenue Potential”

At Human Capital, we are constantly looking for opportunities to help our clients. This is especially true for our healthcare division, since we understand the financial challenges facing providers. The task at hand is to balance cost containment with finding new ways to increase revenue. What if you could improve performance for both objectives?

On the revenue side, do you know how much is being lost because your reimbursement efforts are less effective than they should be? Human Capital has recently formed an alliance with Certified Reimbursement Solutions, LLC. “CRS” is a formidable company in “revenue cycle management” which specializes in maximizing reimbursement through optimizing performance at each step of the post-payment process. Is your credentialing in order? Have you integrated EHR into your practice? Are you prepared for ICD-10 training? Does your documentation properly support your coding? Are your accounts receivables getting the attention they need before it’s too late? Have you minimized your post-payment audit risk? CRS clients can answer a resounding “YES” to these questions while being paid for services provided in a timely manner. Tailored to each client’s needs, the CRS process is comprehensive, guarantees results, and eliminates the burden of navigating through the reimbursement maze.

On the expense side, Human Capital can reduce your cost of administration services while adding value to supporting your compliance challenges. We understand healthcare and can provide payroll processing, human resources, employee benefits, and workers compensation, as well as consulting services in regulatory compliance, risk management, and healthcare reform. Human Capital can provide any combination of these services at a fraction of the cost because we are specialists in assisting healthcare clients of any size.
